

Rural Elegance in Recreational Paradise

This stunning compound in the upper Hood River valley epitomizes sophisticated country living amid lush gardens and fertile farmland. Inspired by the Cape Cod style of Robert AM Stern, the shingled farmhouse offers spacious light-filled rooms with Palladian windows, French doors, and classic moldings. Generous porches and terraces lead to colorful landscaped gardens, all with smashing views of Mt. Hood.

The main residence is flanked by a guest house, a two-story bunkhouse and video viewing area, and a generous garage with a storage attic. Beyond the family orchard is a 72 foot metal barn for farm equipment and a whimsical garden shed.

The 21 acre property includes two acres of forest and about 16 acres of producing farmland: asparagus, berries and tree fruits are sold at farmer's markets and to fine area restaurants.

Relax in this private paradise, or partake of the many nearby recreational opportunities in the Mt. Hood National forest and the spectacular Columbia River gorge.
