Measuring the square footage in a home is not an exact science. Calculations can vary based on the person doing the measurement, the information available, and the age of the calculation. Williams Trew Real Estate Services does not measure for or calculate square footage of the homes it either lists or assists you in buying. If the square footage of the house you are interested in purchasing is a factor in your decision, you are encouraged to have the measurement calculated by a qualified professional, such as an appraiser, engineer or architect.

In marketing this home, Williams Trew Real Estate Services was provided with the following square footage calculations, provided by the following sources. Again, Williams Trew Real Estate Services has not, and cannot, verify the accuracy of the following information. Rather, you are encouraged to make your own inspection or inquiry if the amount of square footage is a factor in your decision.

The Sellers Disclosure is probably the most important document in a residential real estate transaction. Buyers will review the disclosure and will rely on it in making a decision to purchase the property. Consequently, it is vitally important for the seller to review the form very carefully and disclose to the buyer all of the information known about the property. It is better to disclose all repairs rather than rely on the belief the problem has been fixed. Even if a past problem has been remedied, there is always a chance of a reoccurrence or a buyer discovering a past problem. Such a discovery may serve as the basis for a lawsuit for non-disclosure. So, please read this disclosure form very, very carefully and fill it out completely and as accurately as possible.

Additionally, you must keep the Sellers Disclosure current. If, after the Sellers Disclosure is completed, anything happens to the home, or if you become aware of any information or report about the condition of the home, the Sellers Disclosure must be amended to reflect the change or new information.
