PORTFOLIO OVERVIEW

480 ACRES | ADAMS COUNTY, CO

An exceptional opportunity to acquire up to 480 acres of top-performing farmland in the heart of Adams County. Available individually or as a portfolio, each 160-acre tract combines above-average agricultural productivity with compelling long-term development potential.

Positioned within an area experiencing steady residential expansion, these parcels present a rare dual-track investment: continued agricultural income today and subdividable value tomorrow. Favorable topography, county-maintained road frontage, and proximity to utilities create a clear path for future subdivision into 20- to 40-acre ranchette-style homesites, catering to the growing demand for low-density rural residential living near the Denver metro corridor.

AREA OVERVIEW

480 ACRES | ADAMS COUNTY, CO

AREA OVERVIEW

East of Denver International Airport, the Adams County land market is rapidly transforming under “aerotropolis” growth—airport-driven expansion in logistics, residential, and industrial development. The airport’s 39-gate expansion has increased capacity by nearly 30%, fueling long-term employment and infrastructure investment along the I-70 and E-470 corridors. Major projects like the Aerotropolis Parkway interchange and Port Colorado are unlocking new access and development opportunities, while the Colorado Air & Space Port adds an aerospace and advanced manufacturing hub just seven miles from DEN.

Large-scale master plans such as The Aurora Highlands continue to draw both residential and commercial interest, signaling strong demand for both traditional subdivisions and low-density acreage properties. Altogether, eastern Adams County combines productive farmland with growing optionality for industrial, residential, and ranchette-style development as utilities and absorption expand.

AREA PROXIMITY MAP

The industrial park located just south of DIA—anchored by developments such as HighPoint Logistics Park (125 acres / ~2.2 million sq ft) and the forthcoming King Ranch Industrial Park (~528 acres)—is rapidly emerging as one of the region’s premier logistics and manufacturing hubs. HighPoint, situated at E. 64th Avenue and E-470, offers Class A cross-dock, front-park, and rear-load buildings and enjoys access to Opportunity-Zone, Enterprise-Zone and Foreign-Trade-Zone incentives. The King Ranch site, just 2 miles south of the main terminal at DIA, is poised for large-format users in logistics, manufacturing, data and technology services. With immediate access to E-470 and I-70, proximity to airport cargo infrastructure and highly accessible transportation links, this corridor is seeing strong demand and new-build activity that underpins significant value-capture potential.

The Colorado Air and Space Port (CASP), located just seven miles southeast of Denver International Airport in Adams County, Colorado, is rapidly evolving beyond its general-aviation roots into a strategic aerospace and industrial hub. Covering approximately 3,349 acres of airport property and surrounded by an additional 7,000 + acres of master-planned industrial land, CASP features dual 8,000-foot runways, significant development-ready acreage, and direct access to interstate and rail infrastructure — making it uniquely positioned for aviation, aerospace, and advanced manufacturing uses.

Denver International Airport (DIA) covers roughly 34,000 acres (53 square miles), making it one of the largest airport complexes in the United States. In 2024 it served over 82.4 million passengers, generating an estimated $47.2 billion in annual economic impact for the state of Colorado and supporting roughly 244,000 jobs across the region.

ZONING COMPS

480 ACRES | ADAMS COUNTY, CO

ZONING STRATEGY

The subject property occupies a strong position within the Adams County land and development market, characterized by a convergence of agricultural strength, infrastructure expansion, and residential migration east of Denver International Airport. To maximize exposure and achieve an optimal outcome, The Thomas Group recommends retaining the A-3 designation, or seek a higher-density agricultural zoning that allows for residences on smaller plots of land. Options listed below:

Agricultural-3 District (A-3) Current

- The minimum lot size is 35 acres, maintaining the district's agricultural character and minimizing residential density.
- One single-family residence is permitted per lot, along with associated agricultural and equestrian uses.
- Accessory agricultural structures such as barns, storage facilities, and equipment sheds are permitted as part of the principal farming or residential use.
- Conditional uses—including commercial agricultural operations, equestrian facilities, and certain institutional or low-impact commercial activities—may be allowed through a Conditional Use Permit.

Agricultural-2 District (A-2) Rezone

- The minimum lot size is 10 acres, encouraging large-lot rural residential development while maintaining agricultural viability.
- One single-family residence is permitted per lot, along with typical agricultural activities such as cultivation, grazing, and limited livestock keeping.
- Accessory buildings and structures related to residential or agricultural use are permitted without strict lot-coverage limitations, provided they comply with setback and height requirements.

Agricultural-1 District (A-1) Rezone

- The minimum lot area for a homesite varies depending on the availability of public water and sewer or equivalent utilities.
- Limited farming uses, such as cultivation and keeping of small livestock, are permitted for the individual homeowner.
- The minimum floor area for a single-story dwelling is 1,200 square feet.
